Art Unit: 1793

1. Applicant is requested to provide in the specification headings, such as “background of the invention”, “summary of the invention”, “brief description of the drawings”, “detailed description of the drawings” to render the specification in a better format.
2. The drawings is objected to in that the claimed “air propulsion system” (claims 23-30) is not shown. Correction is required. Rule 1.83.
3. Claim 21 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

It is not clear what “intersection” is referred to.

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 11-30 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over US 5,758,713 to Fallet and further in view of EP 165,892 and US 6,544,469 to Suzuki et al.

Fallet shows a decoring device comprising a rigid frame 12, two clamping devices 24 having tightening plate 34 for clamping two castings to be decored, unbalancing motors 26, a pneumatic hammer 40. Thus, Fallet substantially shows the invention as claimed except that the decoring device is provided with a plurality of closable access openings (col.2, line 46) and that he does not show to provide a robot for the operation. However, EP '892 shows that a decorating device is provided with a single closable door 22 for loading and unloading the casting to be decorated. Thus, it would have been obvious to provide the decorating device of Fallet with a single or double door depending on the number of casting to be decorated each time. Further, Suzuki et al. show that it is conventional to provide a robot for loading material into a plurality of working stations (see figures 1, 2, 8, 9, 12, 13, 15, 23, 24, 32, 39) such that to facilitate the casting operation. It would have been obvious to provide a robot and a plurality of decorating device in the process of Fallet in view of Suzuki et al. to facilitate the decorating operation. With respect to claim 14, EP '892 appears to provide an opening in the bottom panel 15 (see figure 1). With respect to claim 17, it is conventional to provide springs in addition to elastic rubbers in a decorating device to facilitate the decorating process (see, for example, US 6,644,382 to Aoyama et al. wherein springs 25 is provided). With respect to claims 23-30, it is conventional to provide an air propulsion system to expedite a material separating process (see, for example, page 2, lines 3-18 of US 2,002,974 to Bennett et al.).
